

Sintered materials, especially sintered glasses, produced from pyrogenically produced silicon dioxide which has been processed to silicon granulates in a compacting step, and the use of such granulates in the production of formed glass bodies.